MAY 1914

MAYSVILLE, KENTUCKY, TUESDAY, JANUARY 13, 1914.

ONE COPY—ONE CENT.

When a statesman makes a statement and it starts a little fight, He can dodge results by claiming that he wasn't quoted right. Yes, he safely gets from under though there be the deuce to pay; But we plain and common people must be careful what we say.

Prof. Turnipseed, principal of the Orangeburg Consolidated School, took his little daughter, Vivian, to Cincinnati, Saturday, for medical treatment, returning Monday. The little girl is now improving.

But Put the Money in Free Wards for the Poor in Wilson Hospital.

Only a few weeks ago Public Health Nurse Miss Hunt appeared before our City Council and asked for a house for consumptives; also at the same time made the statement that there was no adequate provision made at the hospital for the poor who are unable to pay. Would it not be more beneficial to the community at large to take the money to be used in the purchase of an auto patrol wagon to put suitable wards in the hospital for the afflicted people.

for women who want good Suits at less than the price of cheap ones. $25 Suits for $15. The $22.50 Suits for $12.50. There will be no disappointment in these handsome garments. New in every detail of material, design and tailoring. Great advantages at $15 and $12.50.

The Wool Blankets

They are called wool blankets but there is a little cotton warp to prevent shrinking so they will return from the laundry light, soft and full size. Barely enough cotton to prevent shrinking but not enough to detract from the wool—warmth of these good ample blankets. The price is so little too—$5.00, which means saving $1.50 as these handsome bed coverings are regular $6.50 values. All white, with pretty colored borders.

$6 and $7 Worth of Values in Blouses at $3.50 and $3.98

Not all sizes nor a complete color range but as a whole a very comprehensive assortment. New fresh blouses, nothing shop worn or passe in the entire line. Lace, Mosaic, plain or brocaded and Chiffons, the latter in greatest variety.

Men's 50c Socks for 15c

That sounds too good to be true doesn't it? Here are the details. The socks are a fine weave of lisle thread in fancy colors, principally checks in black-and-white or navy-and-white with solid color heels, toes and tops of double strength. They are a beautiful quality and the colors are clear and true but the pattern may not be conservative enough for general taste. So to keep these socks from lingering over time we have made a price that will sell them on sight. Sizes 9½ and 10.

"ON FAME'S ETERNAL CAMPING GROUND."

Of no one could Theodore O'Hara's "Bivouac of the Dead" have been more appropriately written than of General Buckner, whose grave will be in the Frankfort Cemetery with that of the poet-soldier.

The cemetery is one of the most beautiful spots that was ever consecrated to the dead. Residents of Frankfort are sometimes joked about its being a favorite place for an afternoon stroll. But why not? A little communion now and then with the members of the silent majority has a chastening and an ennobling effect. There is no better object lesson for those of us who are living, and especially for those of us who have yet to make our way and our mark in the world, than to read the inscriptions upon the monuments reared to those whose work was well done, and who were revered while living, and are revered in death, by their fellow men. To read the lesson amid incomparably beautiful surroundings heightens its effect. And nobody whose soul is attuned to that which is beautiful in nature and in life can fail to be impressed with the fact that there is a singular appropriateness in the site which Kentucky has selected for the repose of her distinguished sons. Daniel Boone never looked upon a fairer prospect than that which his monument above the Kentucky River commands, and the famous frontiersman's love for Kentucky upon first sight was like that of a man for a maid.

That General Buckner sleeps beneath the Blue Grass turf will be an added reason why residents of Frankfort, and other Kentuckians, should make an occasional pilgrimage to the State Cemetery for recreation in the better sense of the term—to "create anew" ideas and ideals of life, basing them upon contemplation of the lives of those who lived worthily, who died wept and honored, and who are worthy of the soothing pines when the winds sweep across the tombs of soldier and civilian whose services to their people are recorded upon tablets of stone.

General Buckner loved Kentucky's mountains and meadowlands, her forests and streams, as well as any man since Boone. He had the happiness to spend nearly a century in Kentucky. His life spanned the greater part of her history as a State. He saw the frontiersman's axe blaze the way for farm and town, for road and school and church when the red deer gazed with astonished eyes upon the bustle of the invasion. He was—under arms and in civil service—first a Kentuckian, then an American, and last a Kentuckian. He lived a long life and lived it well. He had the rare good fortune to remain mentally and spiritually young to the end. He died as painlessly and peacefully as a "child passes from play to slumber." Now that his long life is "rounded with a sleep," the silent tent of the brave soldier and plain-living, high-thinking gentleman will be spread "on fame's eternal camping ground." The inscription upon his monument will serve as an inspiration to young Kentuckians whose feet will tread softly the silent pathways to his tomb when another century of Kentucky's history has been written and the moss is thick upon marble that now gleams white upon the hill above the river.—Frankfort Journal.

William Jennings Bryan says he never gets up to make a speech, but he gets nervous, scared and has sinking spells in his tummy. Don't believe it. If the "Peerless One" had said he had a pain in his pocketbook when he speaks for nothing there would be some color to it. W. J. B. has too much gall, nerve and brass, to shy at anything like $300 per.

THE DANGERS OF SMOKING.

One theory is that a lighted cigar thrown down a hatchway by a steerage passenger caused the fire that burned the steamer Volturino to the water's edge and cost the lives of about 140 persons.

A good deal is said now and again about the effect of tobacco upon health. But it is the health of the smoker that is affected by smoking. A considerable danger to the lives of others is caused by the persistent theory of the smoker that it is safe to flick a lighted cigar or cigarette "butt" anywhere at any time. It is not difficult to extinguish the "butt," or the match with which the cigar has been lighted, but the average smoker does not bother himself with the slight effort that is required.

Some of the greatest fires of history, among them that which destroyed a large section of Baltimore, are charged to the carelessness of smokers. And innumerable smaller fires are so caused.—Frankfort State Journal.

HOW THE TARIFF IS WORKING.

Joseph H. Grundy, the president of a company at Bristol, Pa., employing a thousand persons spinning yarns, predicted in an interview in the Philadelphia Press the other day that the country is on the verge of a period of depression much more severe and of much longer duration than was the case in 1907. He laid the fault at the tariff.

The iron and steel industry is generally accepted as the best business barometer. The trade journals report the mills and furnaces to be operating at only about half their capacity and quote the ironmasters as complaining that reduced prices fail to attract orders. All this is not to be wondered at. The business world is simply marking time until it sees what Congress is going to do. But it hurts.

Indiana grain men in a position to speak advisedly believe that the price of Indiana corn is five cents lower at the elevators than it would be except for the reduction of duty on agricultural imports in the new tariff bill, and the consequent invasion of the American market by Argentine corn. They also believe that the reduction of fifty per cent. in the duty on hay has closed the eastern markets to the middle west farmer through the introduction of the Canadian product. They do not venture an estimate on the effect had on the price of wheat and oats by the tariff reductions, but say that Canadian oats are being shipped as far south as Texas in active competition with the American product.

WHEN WILL THE FIGHTING BEGIN?

The actions of President Wilson and Huerta reminds one of Tom Sawyer and the new boy in town. Tom introduced himself thusly: "I can whip you." The colloquy followed.

"No you can't, nudder."
"You are a lyer."
"You are a nudder one."
"You hit me first."
"For two cents I would."
"Here is your two cents."
(Tom drew a ring in the sand.)
"I dare you to step in."
The dare was accepted. Then the dust began to fly.

The fight was on at last.
Will the next move of Mr. Wilson be to draw a ring—if he does not, why did he ever begin the affair?

RUN DOWN FOR YEARS

Strength Restored by Vinol

Strength and even life itself depends upon nourishment and proper assimilation of food, and unless digestion is good the whole body suffers.

Mrs. C. W. Busby of Mountville, W. Va., says: "For years I was in a weakened, run-down condition, and I could not find anything that would help me. Vinol was recommended and I tried it. Before I finished the first bottle I was better. I continued its use and am as well as ever. I have gotten several neighbors to take Vinol with the same result."

We know the great power of Vinol our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, in building up all weakened, run-down persons, and for chronic coughs, colds and pulmonary trouble, and that is why we guarantee to return your money if it does not help you. J. C. Peor, Druggist, Maysville, Ky.

P. S. Our Saxo Salve is truly wonderful for Eczema. We guarantee it.

mini being at the canal basin at Hollidaysburg on one side and the canal basin at Johnstown on the other. The former being 1398 feet below the mountain summit—the latter 1771. Right here permit the remark that the building of the Allegheny Portage Railway was as epoch-making as the opening of the Cumberland Road in 1818 or the crossing of the Rocky Mountains by the iron horse 50 years ago. Considering the coach and the wagon to have been the natural means of communication we can say that the Portage Railway was the first artificial means of communication between the East and the Mississippi basin. Well might the great English Engineer Stevenson say that "in boldness of design and in difficulty of execution, this railway could be compared with no other modern work unless exception was made for the passage of the Simplon or Mt. Cenis in the Alps."

Up to that time the Morris Canal between the Hudson and the Delaware was the only canal in America in which boats were moved from different levels by means of inclined planes instead of locks. The whole rise and fall of the Morris Canal was 1357 feet of which 223 were overcome by means of locks and the remaining 1334 feet by 23 inclines, having an average lift of 58 feet each!

The history of the Pennsylvania Canal is well-known. The constant rivalry for the Western trade between New York and Philadelphia and Baltimore compelled the building of many canals and roads. Pennsylvania wanted the business of the great Ohio Valley and she got it and kept it for more than a half century through the agency of her canal even if it did cost ten millions!

The money was not spent in vain. Dickens in his American notes gives one many interesting glimpses of the historic old ditch when he was a traveler on it in 1841. It was from his entertaining pages that the writer when a little boy first learned of the water-way that crossed the mountains.

Today as the traveler over the Pennsylvania Central Railroad coming from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh comes flying along the banks of the lovely and romantic Juniata he sees the abandoned canal and the rotting old canal boats for many a mile. In this great and busy world one thing soon leads to another and it may be a better one. The success of the Portage Railway suggests a greater one, a railway over all the mountains between the tide waters of the Delaware and our own beautiful river. In 1836 the Pennsylvania Legislature passed a resolution ordering the Canal Commission to have a survey made of the Allegheny mountains to determine whether the inclined planes could not be dispensed with. Ten years later the great Pennsylvania Central Railroad was incorporated which now they say not only owns the site of the old canal but everybody and everything in the great Keystone State besides!

DESERTED GIRL

Makes Pitiabie Appeal to Police.—Induced to Come From Maysville and Then Deserted Her.

(Portsmouth Blade.)

Abandoned and betrayed by the man who under a promise of marriage induced her to accompany him to Portsmouth and even relieved her of the last two dollars she had, Bettie Mae Reese, a 17-year-old Maysville, Ky., girl appealed to the police for help yesterday.

The couple came here Monday night and registered at a hotel as Mr. and Mrs. John Fritz, of Cincinnati. He was recognized by the hotel management as a traveling man who had stopped there once before. He carried a small grip which is said to have contained corn salve. He paid the hotel for the two days he spent at the house and left Wednesday morning telling his supposed wife he was going down street and would be back later. That was the last seen of him. The girl said she had become acquainted with the man through another claiming to be his brother, and they kept company for some time, but he always postponed their wedding date, but last Monday promised to marry her if she would accompany her to Portsmouth.

The girl who is said to be well connected at Maysville, was almost prostrated over her sad plight and begged assistance so that she might return to her home at once. She was provided with transportation by the city authorities and Chief Howard personally accompanied her to the C. & O. depot.

The police will bend every energy to run down the girl's seducer, as his act is a violation of the Mann "white slave" act.

Services at the First Baptist Church were very good. Two additions at the morning service. One hundred and thirteen in attendance at Sunday School.

Yesterday the president of the City Sunday School Association was at the First Christian Church. He found that they have all the requirements for a front rank or standard Sunday School except one. No doubt it will soon make that point.

Passes Away at Her Home on West Third Street.

Sunday night the death angel visited the home of the Flarity family, removing the aged mother, Mrs. Patrick Flarity.

Mrs. Flarity had apparently been in her usual health. After eating her supper and talking with the family and nearing the hour for retiring it was noticed that the mother was fainting and in a few moments she had passed away. Heart failure was the cause.

She was in her seventy-fifth year. She is survived by one son and two daughters. M. J. Flarity, Miss Della Flarity and Mrs. Martin O'Neal—all of this city.

Funeral Tuesday morning at St. Patrick's Church. Burial in Washington Cemetery.

Our efforts are always in the interest of the seller and the average of $19.17 made by George Wilson, Adams county, on 3,445 pounds, and the average of L. M. Morgan, Mason county, $17.92, show that we get results. One basket reached $25 and several went past $20. The experience our force has had gives us the right to say "We Lead; Others Follow." FORTUNES IN SAUSAGES.

Westphalia, in Prussia, is the home of the sausage. There, it is said, a trader will name no fewer than 400 different kinds of sausage. A sausage exhibition was held recently in Germany, at which 1,000 varieties of sausages were shown.

In this connection the story is told of a young Prussian who, though he had received an expensive training as a chemist, shut himself up in his laboratory, and instead of devising a new dye, safety match, motor engine, explosive, aeroplane or photographic lens, took pork, veal, olives, pepper, fennel, old wine, cheese, apples, cinnamon and herings' roe and from them evolved a wonderful and totally original "wurst"—the best of its kind. He has amassed a considerable fortune from its sale.—Berlin Correspondence New York Sun.
